As a crisis negotiator, everybody is counting on you to know what to say to prevent a tragic outcome. But many negotiators feel unprepared to be in the hot seat when the stakes are literally life and death. Our instructors are active-duty negotiators who teach simple concepts that actually work. This course gives negotiators the confidence they need to save lives.

Our instructors are team leaders on a busy urban team, so they know exactly what works and what doesn't. They'll share with you what techniques and equipment they used last week, not 20 years ago!

Your instructors are Lt. Donald Anderson, OIC of San Francisco PD's Crisis Intervention Team and previous Executive Officer of SFPD's 40-person Crisis Negotiation Team, Lt. James Tacchini and Sgt. Lily Prillinger who are both Team Leaders on the SFPD's Crisis Negotiation Team. They are all current practitioners as well as highly experienced instructors.

Students will learn:

- ✓ How crisis negotiators can become an indispensable asset to your agency
- ✓ How the public duty and special relationships doctrine affect tactical decision-making
- ✓ Disengagement and re-engagement plans for barricade incidents
- ✓ Modern negotiating techniques including video chat negotiations
- ✓ National standard recommendations for negotiators
- ✓ ...and much more
