Learn how to conduct internal affairs from incident to adjudication from a highly-experienced supervisor.

Law enforcement officers are under scrutiny like never before. That's why when an officer is accused of wrongdoing, the investigation must be conducted by competent and professionally trained investigators. Officers deserve it and so do the public they serve. That's where you come in!

This course provides law enforcement supervisors and investigators with the specific skills they can use to investigate both internally and externally generated matters. This training will include directions on the crucial steps that must be taken during the intake, investigation, presentation, and adjudication phase. You'll learn how to organize an investigation, and proven methods for conducting thorough investigations based on the latest case law.

Whether you are a supervisor with collateral duties in the initial intake of IA complaints, or you conduct full-blown IA investigations for your agency, this class is for you.

Attend this course and receive:

- Step by step instruction on how to conduct internal affairs investigations and "leave no stone unturned"
- Learn how new laws (such as California's SB2) affect investigations.
- Learn how to mitigate criminal, civil, and administrative liability for your officers and your agency.
